RECEPTION GIVEN THE TEACHERS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church gave a reception last Friday evening to the teachers of all the schools and their families. There was a good attendance and a delightful program was enjoyed. Mrs. James R. Bennett presided, welcoming the teachers on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, and the Rev. Elliott L. Fisher made the welcoming address on behalf of the church.

Mayor H. H. Smith being called upon to address the gathering, said he felt somewhat embarrassed in facing such an array of beauty and talent from the schools. Mr. Smith stressed the great responsibility that is placed upon the shoulders of the teachers, and said the parents of the district were relieved to a great extent of their anxiety as to the future welfare and education of their children when they knew that they are under the supervision of such capable teachers as we have in our schools.

Rev. Elliott L. Fisher expressed the opinion that the church and school must go hand in hand in the upbuilding and education of the youth of the community, in order to attain the high ideals set before them. In closing he extended a most hearty welcome to Professor James Ferguson and all the members of the faculty.

Prof. W. J. Savage, district superintendent, spoke at some length in a very pleasing manner, on the schools and the high efficency of the teachers, as well as the scholars, and declared that he, as superintendent of Jefferson district, was in a position to state that everything possible was being done for the education of the youth in our community. In closing he thanked the ladies for the invitation they had given him to be present, and he expressed the opinion that such meetings create a harmonious feeling between parents and teachers.

Mr. James Ferguson, principal of Jefferson Union high school, said that it was indeed a great pleasure for him to be a guest at such a notable gathering. He spoke very highly of Jefferson Union high school and remarked: "You will travel far before you will find a high school in such a fine location, with 20 acres of land around it," and he complimented the parties who were responsible and so far-seeing as to purchase such a fine piece of land for a school site. He agreed with the Rev. Fisher that if the church and the school work hand in hand together, "we can accomplish great things, and build for a better youth in this community, and the results of our labor together will be manifested in the splendid youth of the district."

Mr. A. Gehringer and Mr. Truman Bentley, high school trustees, were present as guests of the ladies.

Those who took part in the program were: Mrs. Clarice Olson, song; Mrs. Gowland, song; Mr. W. McGregor, song; Mr. Manfried Hanson, violin solo; Master Jack Saunders, violin solo; Mr. Melvin Williams, banjo solo. The talent were ably accompanied by the following ladies: Mrs. Secor, Mrs. Harry McKee and Miss Daisy Gowland.

Refreshments were afterwards served downstairs.

The Ladies' Aid are deeply grateful to all who so willingly contributed to make the evening a great success.

INCREASING NUMBER OF BUILDING PERMITS

The issuance of building permits shows a continued growth in Daly City. City Clerk B. C. Ross reports the issuance of the following permits during the past week:

P. Duerner, 409 Vista Grande avenue, five rooms.

Firemen Will Celebrate

All the companies of the Daly City Volunteer Fire Department will hold their annual picnic at Lovchen Gardens, Colma, early next month.

AIMS AND OBJECTS OF THE LIONS CLUB

The question has been asked several times of late: "What is the object of the Lions Club? What has it been organized for, and who are its members?"

The International Association of Lions Clubs is now on the threshold of a new decade of service and usefulness. It has grown constantly and consistently. It has justified its growth by the splendid activities in which Lions Clubs everywhere have engaged. One of its greatest functions has been to bring the individual who is able to serve, in touch with those who need service. The results accomplished have been attained through the organized efforts put forth by all Lions Clubs.

This is an era of organization. Individual accomplishments and individual attainments are not the rule but the exception. Still our great countries are making more rapid progress in every way than ever before. Organization is the answer.

Men, as indviduals, practicing the principles of Lionism in their dealings with other men, would make but little impression, but by being allied with a force of 50,000 members in nearly 1,100 clubs, they are making a name for Lionism that will endure.

In 1917 there were approximately twenty-five Lions Clubs, with a membership of 800. On June 1, 1926, there were 1,077 clubs, with a membership of 48,363. Since then the membership has grown by leaps and bounds.

The Daly City Lions Club was organized eight months ago by a few of the energetic business men in this district. They met at the City Hall one evening and listened to a very interesting talk by Arthur Brockwell, district organizer, and from that meeting sprang the formation of the local Lions Club.

The membership is composed chiefly of business and professional men of the community, who once a week get together and enjoy a luncheon, and there discuss the various problems confronting this fast growing district. They have many objectives and plans for the betterment of Daly City in the very near future. Two of the most outstanding plans that the club has under consideration are to equip children's playgrounds with swings, slides and rings, and also to take an active part in the Boy Scout movement in this section.

These are only two of their objectives. Later on, as the club grows stronger in membership and finances, they will be of greater service to the community.

In order to accomplish their aims, funds are required, as well as earnest co-operation. On Saturday evening, September 17, the Lions Club will hold a dance in the Daly City Auditorium. All the funds derived from this dance will be used by the Lions Club in advancing their program of progress.

SPECIAL FEATURE AT METHODIST CHURCH

"A Trip to the Hawaiian Islands" will be the special feature Sunday evening at the Daly City Methodist church. Views of the beauty spots of the Islands, also the special missionary work carried on among the natives, will be of interest to all. Most everyone will enjoy the stereopticon views. Come early.

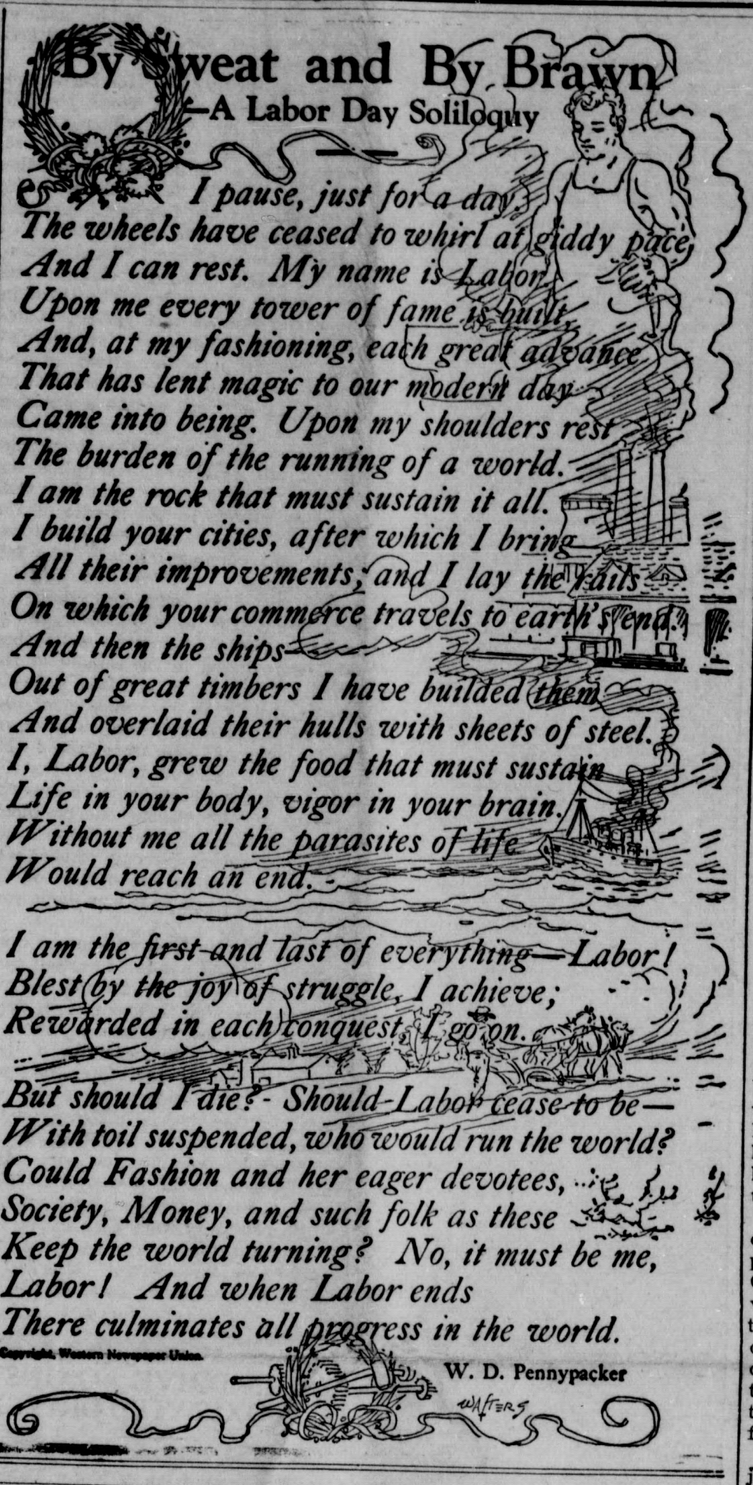
Sunday morning the subject will be, "Labor, a Blessing or a Curse?" Everybody is invited to help celebrate Labor Day at the Sunday morning service, at 11 o'clock.

The quarterly conference was held last Sunday evening, at which time the reports for the year were submitted. Within the last three months attendance has increased in Sunday school and church, and a most remarkable increase in the young people's organization, the Epworth League. Every department of the church has gone forward.

Conference meets Wednesday, September 14, at which time the pastor will leave for Sacramento to attend. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Ginsberg have been elected as special delegates to the Lay Association, which is to meet at the same time.

Next week an announcement will be made concerning the preacher for Conference Sunday. This church will not close during the Conference Sunday program at Sacramento, but will continue with its worship as usual.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 9, 10 and 11, the San Mateo Alliance, Epworth League, which includes all the Leagues of San Mateo county, will hold a retreat at Kings Mountain. A large delegation from this church is expected to leave on Friday morning. A banner will be awarded for the largest attendance, and special prizes for the League winning the athletic contest on Saturday.



By Sweat and By Brawn
—A Labor Day Soliloquy
I pause, just for a day.
The wheels have ceased to whirl at giddy pace,
And I can rest. My name is Labor.
Upon me every tower of fame is built.
And, at my fashioning, each great advance
That has lent magic to our modern day
Came into being. Upon my shoulders rest
The burden of the running of a world.
I am the rock that must sustain it all.
I build your cities, after which I bring
All their improvements; and I lay the rails
On which your commerce travels to earth's end.
And then the ships—
Out of great timbers I have builded them
And overlaid their hulls with sheets of steel.
I, Labor, grew the food that must sustain
Life in your body, vigor in your brain.
Without me all the parasites of life
Would reach an end.
I am the first and last of everything—Labor!
Blest by the joy of struggle, I achieve;
Rewarded in each conquest, I go on.
But should I die?—Should Labor cease to be—
With toil suspended, who would run the world?
Could Fashion and her eager devotees,
Society, Money, and such folk as these
Keep the world turning? No, it must be me,
Labor! And when Labor ends
There culminates all progress in the world.

MOTOR THROUGH THE NORTH PART OF STATE

Mrs. L. Lorentzen, of Templeton avenue, took a party of friends on a motor trip through the northern part of the state last week. The party left Wednesday morning via the Berkeley ferry to Vallejo, over the new bridge to St. Helena, where Mrs. Lorentzen stopped to say "Hello" to her uncle, Mr. Anker Miller, who for twenty years was superintendent of the Graystone winery of St. Helena. They then journeyed to the Myrtledale Hotel in Calistoga where Mr. E. Goodman and his mother, of San Francisco, entertained at a luncheon. From there over Mt. St. Helena to Lakeport, over the old Scoats valley road to Willits. The next morning they made an early start, traveling over the Redwood highway, having luncheon at Garberville Inn, at last coming to Eureka, where the party put up for the night at Hotel Vance.

The next morning a trip to Trinidad, to the whaling station, back to Eureka and again over the Redwood highway to Willits, where Mr. Louis Anker, well known undertaker, and wife, gave a wonderful dinner at their home, in honor of Mrs. Lorenz and friends.

Saturday morning the party started for home, a stop being made in Ukiah, where Mrs. Lorentzen called on her friend Mrs. M. Mannon, wife of the late Judge Mannon. Then over to Vichi Springs for one of the famous baths, down to Pop McCrays for lunch. Mrs. Lorentzen has known "Pop" since she was 16 years old. From there to Cloverdale to call on the Albert family of Moulton Hill winery, where Mrs. Lorentzen made her home when she as a young girl came to this country, and then back to Daly City.

Outside of two flat tires, the 820 miles were covered without mishap, and if anyone could have heard the four ladies, Mrs. C. Cox, Mrs. Anna Hansen, Mrs. Florence Scoenfeld, and the driver, Mrs. Lorentzen, singing they would have heard this song the most:

"I love you, California;
You are the greatest state of all."

NATIVE SONS FIGHT STORES' FETE ACTION

A resolution of protest was passed yesterday by the Joint Admission Day committee of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West following the announcement that a number of department stores in San Francisco will be open on that day. The committee stated that it has been customary for the stores to close on this holiday.

It was recently announced by several department stores that inasmuch as there will be no San Francisco celebration of Admission Day, the establishments will be open for business.

CHURCH IS GREATEST HARMONIZING AGENCY

The great questions of the day are being more and more brought under an economic head. The eighteenth amendment was brought about and made possible by the fact that men had learned that it was too costly to perpetuate the open saloon.

Recently it has been brought to the minds of the thinking classes that more than five million of the inhabitants of the United States can neither read or write, and statistics also show that more than three-fifths of the crime come from the ignorant classes. So it is cheaper to educate than to care for the criminals.

Some 3,500 inmates in the San Quentin prison, and who is paying for the housing, feeding, clothing and guarding of these? Would it not be cheaper to bring them under the power of the gospel and get rid of the criminal tendencies?

The church today is the greatest harmonizing agency of the world. And after all, Christianity is just bringing the human family into complete harmony with God.

Only 5 per cent of the orphans of our land are really orphans, and we must house and clothe these children. But some time we will be convinced that separation and divorce are too expensive to be carried on too openly.

The theme for next Sabbath evening at Grace Presbyterian church will be, "The Long Road Without a Turn—and What Turns it?"

The Sunday school was full last Sabbath and the interest was at fever heat, and we work toward the Rally Day on September 25. Help us work for boys and girls.

Sunday night services were far above the ordinary. The C. E. had over twenty present, and we had for our guests and speaker Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Calvary Presbyterian church. Mrs. McNair sang again at the preaching service, to the delight and uplift of the congregation.

If you know of any one whom we may help, please let us know.

Yours for service,
CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

COUNTIES PLAN TO BUILD COAST ROAD

Preliminary steps toward the construction of an ocean shore highway between San Francisco and Santa Cruz through San Mateo county were taken at a meeting of the board of supervisors of the three counties held in San Francisco last Wednesday.

Supervisors John W. Poole, Rosalie Brown, C. V. Thompson and Manuel Francis of San Mateo county, and the supervisors of San Francisco and Santa Cruz counties, instructed Assistant City Attorney Heidelberg of San Francisco, appointed temporary legal advisor, to proceed with legal steps for the formation of a joint highway district. The district is to embrace the three counties, and an agreement was reached whereby a fund of $5,000 will be made available for a preliminary survey of the proposed route by the California Highway Commission. San Mateo county will appropriate $1,500, Santa Cruz county $1,000, and San Francisco $2,500 for the fund necessary for the preliminary work.

The right-of-way of the old Ocean Shore Railway will be used for a portion of the distance, according to present plans, and the highway will bring Santa Cruz within three hours of San Francisco, it is claimed.

TRUCKMAN KILLED IN HIGHWAY CRASH

Dashed against sharp stones down a 25-foot embankment on the Half Moon Bay road just west of Crystal Springs lakes, the bruised and broken body of Arthur A. Costa, of Oakland, was taken to Mills Memorial hospital late Sunday, where surgeons made a heroic but unsuccessful effort to save his life. Costa died at 11 o'clock on the operating table.

Driving a five-ton truck loaded to capacity with crates of fresh-picked peas from the Half Moon Bay fields, Costa lost control of his machine while descending a curved incline in the road and the heavy vehicle toppled over the bank. With the first lunge of the truck Costa was hurled from the driver's seat onto the rocky bank that led to a dry creek bed more than forty feet below.

A passing motorist took the injured man to the hospital. Due to his being alone on the truck, it has been impossible to learn exactly what caused Costa to lose control of the heavy vehicle.

"BOTTLENECK" STRIP TO BE FINISHED SOON

Rebuilding of the Peninsula highway from Colma through the cemeteries, a distance of a mile and a half, will be finished by the end of October, according to Colonel John H. Skeggs, district engineer for this district.

The highway project is being completed at a total cost of $600,000. Grading work has been finished and half the street car tracks have been removed. Concrete pavement blocks are now being put in at the Colma end of the highway.

The completion of the work will mean the breaking of the Colma "bottleneck," a menace to highway traffic for many years.

PARENTS IN SEARCH FOR RUNAWAY BOY

Herman Grewe, Jr., son of a Daly City baker, is the object of a statewide search following his disappearance from home after making threats that he would "never come back." This is the second time he has disappeared from his home, he having previously returned after search had been made for him for several weeks.

Young Grewe is 15 years of age, a student at the Jefferson Union high school. He is an only son and his mother is stricken with grief at his absence.

Officers of San Mateo county have been notified of his disappearance from home, and search is being made for the boy.

LOS ANGELES SEEKS LEGION CONVENTION

California delegates to the national convention of the American Legion, which will be held this month in Paris, France, will make a fight for the selection of Los Angeles as the meeting place of the World war veterans' organization in 1930.

The Legionnaires from this state have already begun their campaign to secure the 1930 conclave, and plans are being made to begin the fight during the Paris convention, according to State Adjutant James K. Fisk.

The Los Angeles invitation to the the Legion will be presented by State Commander Philip F. Dodson of South Pasadena.

BRIDGE PERMIT IS AGAIN POSTPONED BY SUPERVISORS

Decision on the application of Robert W. Thompson for a bay bridge franchise from Candlestick Point to Alameda was again postponed by the San Mateo county board of supervisors at their meeting last Monday morning. That the petition of the applicant was being regarded with more favor than previous applications was manifest when a motion of Supervisor Rosalie Brown to deny the franchise was lost for the want of a second. Supervisor Brown's motion was made after more than an hour of argument in which many public officials and interested citizens participated. Manuel Francis killed the effect of the move when he stated he believed that more consideration should be taken in the application. "I will not vote," he stated.

Immediately afterward Supervisor C. V. Thompson moved that the application be continued two weeks, the motion being seconded by Supervisor Thomas Hickey and passed.

Supervisors James B. McSheehy and Frank Havenner, of San Francisco, appeared at the meeting and made a protest against the granting of the franchise. Fred H. Drake, president of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, then told the supervisors that they could not grant the franchise, as Candlestick Point was within San Francisco county.

Counsel for Thompson then informed Drake that the bridge would be built from a point within San Mateo county.

James C. Reed, representative of the J. W. Seligman Co., which is to finance the bridge, then asked the supervisors to grant the franchise.

Frank E. Webb, who also seeks a bay bridge franchise from Candlestick Point, appeared before the supervisors. His proposed route is within the rulings of the war department, he stated, but Thompson's route is across the proposed site of the Alameda naval base. Webb's application will be heard October 3.

Protests of the assessment district created at North Palo Alto to pay for street work were filed at the Monday meeting of the supervisors.

Plans and specifications for the South San Francisco drainage system were adpoted and bids will be called for September 12.

The San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, through its secretary-manager, Roscoe D. Wyatt, submitted a budget for the coming year to the board of supervisors, asking a total of $12,950 to carry on publicity work.

SAN FRANCISCO WILL HAVE FLOAT IN PARIS

San Francisco will be represented in the American Legion's big parade during the Paris, France, convention by an elaborate float, depicting the life of the northern and central counties of California. The board of supervisors has appropriated $1,200 for the construction of the float and has instructed State Adjutant James K. Fisk of the Legion to superintend the construction of the float.

Thousands of golden poppies will be used by the California Legionnaires to advertise this state during their stay abroad. "Los Angeles, 1930," advertising the fact that that city seeks the national convention of the Legion two years hence, and "The Golden Gate is Never Closed," calling attention to San Francisco, is inscribed on the poppies.

SOLONS ARE NAMED FOR NARCOTIC BODY

Lieutenant Governor Fitts has appointed two members of the legislative committee created by the legislature this year for conference with similar committees of Washington and Oregon on uniform laws against ths illicit narcotic traffic. The appointees are Senator Sanborn Young of Los Gatos, an outstanding figure in the battle to curb the traffic, and Senator E. H. Christian of Alameda county. The committee will consist of five members.

The assembly appointments as made by Edgar C. Levey, speaker of that body, are Assemblyman Thomas L. Lenehan of San Francisco, author of the act creating a narcotic enforcement division under the State Board of Pharmacy, and Assemblyman Z. S. Leymel of Fresno. A fifth member is to be appointed by Governor C. C. Young.

SAN MATEO BRIDGE PROJECT WINS FEDERAL APPROVAL

The Frank C. Towne bridge project from Little Coyote Point, three miles south of San Mateo, to Mount Eden on the Alameda shore, was officially approved yesterday by the War Department, according to news dispatches from Washington, D. C.

A writer recently located Muscle Shoals in the state of Tennessee. State of torpor would describe it better.

Movie producer has brought suit for five million dollars against Lillian Gish. Gosh!

Recent exploits of American airmen should enable Mr. Brisbane to breathe a little easier.

WHEREAS, HERETOFORE, and on the first day of June, 1925, E. G. LEHFELDT and BELLE BLEND LEHFELDT, his wife, parties of the first part, did execute and deliver to TITLE INSURANCE AND GUARANTY COMPANY, a corporation, as trustee, and DAVID BROWN as beneficiary, a certain deed of trust which said deed of trust was thereafter, and on the 5th day of June, 1925, recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, in Volume 171 of Official Records, at page 297 thereof, records of San Mateo County, California, and

WHEREAS, as part of and of even date with the execution of said deed of trust, said E. G. LEHFELDT and BELLE BLEND LEHFELDT, his wife, did execute and deliver to said DAVID BROWN a promissory note in the sum of FIVE HUNDRED ($500.00) DOLLARS payable two years after date with interest thereon at the rate of SEVEN (7) per cent per annum, interest payable quarterly in advance none of which has been paid, and

WHEREAS, heretofore, and on the 16th day of August, 1926, said deed of trust and the note secured thereby, was duly assigned, transferred and conveyed by said DAVID BROWN to the undersigned, H. H. SMITH, who has been ever since and now is the owner and holder thereof and the beneficiary therein, and

WHEREAS, said H. H. SMITH did on the 26th day of November, 1926, record in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, a notice of the breach of the provisions of said note and said deed of trust and of the election of said H. H. SMITH to sell or cause to be sold the real property described and set forth in said deed of trust and hereinafter described, to satisfy the obligations evidenced by said promissory note and|or said deed of trust, and secured by said deed of trust

WHEREAS, said H. H. SMITH, did, on the 26th day of November, 1926, record in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, a notice of the breach of the provisions of said note and said deed of trust and of the election of said H. H. SMITH to sell or cause to be sold the real property described and set forth in said deed of trust and hereinafter described, to satisfy the obligations evidenced by said promissory note and|or said deed of trust, and secured by said deed of trust

WHEREAS, said H. H. SMITH, did, on the 26th day of November, 1926, record in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Volume 272 of Official Records, at page 282 thereof, San Mateo County Records, a substitution of trustee under said deed of trust, appointing CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE INSURANCE COMPANY, a corporation, as trustee in the place and in stead of and as successor to the said TITLE INSURANCE AND GUARANTY COMPANY in said deed of trust hereinabove referred to, thereby conveying unto said new trustee all the powers and duties of its said predecessor;

WHEREAS, subsequent to the substitution of trustee as aforesaid, the CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE INSURANCE COMPANY changed its name to CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, and ever since has been and now is so entitled, and

WHEREAS, said H. H. SMITH did heretofore advise in writing the undersigned CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, as trustee under said deed of trust, that at the time of and prior to the recordation of said notice of breach, a default had been made and was existing in the payment of the principal and interest of said promissory note aforesaid, and that he had, on the 26th day of November, 1926, recorded the aforesaid notice of said breach and also of his election to cause the property described in said notice to be sold, and did demand that the undersigned, as such trustee under the power and authority conferred upon it by said deed of trust, to sell the property described in said deed of trust, and hereinafter described, to satisfy the indebtedness evidenced by said promissory note and secured by said deed of trust.

NOW, THEREFORE, said CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, in accordance with the terms and under the authority of said deed of trust, after due recordation of the aforesaid notice and upon the demand of the said H. H. SMITH duly made as aforesaid, does hereby give notice that on Thursday, the 29th day of September, 1927, at the hour of 10:00 a. m. of said day, at the main entrance of the County Court House in the County of San Mateo, State of California, it will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of San Mateo, State of California, described as follows:

LOT No. 27 in Block Numbered 19, as shown on that certain Map entitled, "Map No. 1 Vista Grande San Mateo County, California," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, November 5, 1906, in Book C of Original Maps, at page 35, and copied into Book 4 of Maps, at page 41.

TERMS OF SALE

The above described parcel of land will be sold for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, ten per cent (10%) payable to the undersigned at the fall of the hammer, balance upon delivery of deed and if not so paid, then the said ten per cent (10%) to be forfeited and sale to be void instruments of conveyance and revenue stamps at purchaser's expense; taxes for the fiscal year 1927-1928 to be borne by the purchaser.

TRAFFIC SAFETY INSTRUCTION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Into ten thousand classrooms of California public schools the message of safety in traffic for children is being carried by the public safety department of the California State Automobile Association.

Schools throughout Northern and Central California in close to 650 cities, towns and school districts are opening the fall term with the first of the series of safety lessons for the year arranged by the association in co-operation with teachers, superintendents and boards of education.

Under the system of visual education in traffic safety for children, the first lesson of the year, the third in the series started last spring, is devoted to the dangers of "jaywalking" and running into the street in the middle of the block, or from behind parked cars. Each month a striking poster is supplied to hang on the classroom wall, and with it a suggested talk to pupils is supplied the teacher. Pointing out to children that crossing streets in the middle of the block is "more dangerous than dynamite," the opening lesson of the fall term reads:

"During 1926 over four thousand school children were killed by automobiles. Of this number more than half were killed in the middle of the block. How many children actually cross streets in the middle of the block compared with those who cross at intersections and crosswalks? No doubt fifty children will cross at intersections and crosswalks to one who crosses in the middle of the block, yet more than half the children killed last year were among those who crossed streets in the middle of the block. Now do you see how dangerous this habit is?

"It is especially dangerous to cross a street behind a line of parked cars. The oncoming driver can not see you. He can not stop if you run in front of his car, for the reason that he does not expect to encounter a "jaywalker," and is therefore not prepared. The child crossing in the middle of the block is hidden from the view of the driver, who may be attempting to pass another car. And, finally, cars travel at a greater speed between blocks than at intersections.

"You children were born in the age of the automobile. Your parents have taught you to be careful. You receive safety instruction in sschool. Surely there is no excuse for you to be a "jaywalker."

BEGIN DRIVE AGAINST INTOXICATED DRIVERS

The drive launched several weeks ago by the Division of Motor Vehicles against intoxicated drivers continued to show results during the past month, with twenty of the thirty-eight persons who lost their licenses for various causes being charged with driving while intoxicated.

Members of the traffic department have instructions to give particular attention to this class of violation, and to show no mercy to persons caught driving in an intoxicated condition.

"Bootleg and gasoline won't mix," is the terse order that has gone out.

Two persons lost their licenses during the month because of physical disability. They are Donald B. Denslow, of Long Beach, and Mrs. George Popp, of Bakersfield. Oakley Juvinall, of Monrovia, lost his license because of a false statement concerning his age. The license of Old Vold, of McCloud, was revoked after a hearing by the department.

In one case a license was revoked because the division's records showed three convicitions of speeding and reckless driving within the year. This was the license of Kenneth M. Pier, of Monrovia.

PAID IN FULL

"Third Notice." Every editor has received them. The postmaster sends them to the editor. The postmaster is not to blame. For instance, there is a man by the name of—well, say Tim Snort—who sent three notices to stop his paper. He did not want it any longer; we wondered what was the matter. Upon investigating our subscription list we found that Tim was short $5.70. He had never paid a cent, and yet he stopped his paper as a matter of economy—to us. A few evenings ago we stopped in a church and Tim's melodious voice rang out clear in the song, "Jesus Paid it All." We may have been mistaken, but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent him a receipt in full, begging his pardon for not knowing that he had made an assignment of his liabilities to the Lord.—Altoona (Kan.) Tribune.

CITY HALL EFFICIENCY

In the interest of efficiency the telephone salutation "hello" has been banned at the Berkeley, Cal., city hall. Hereafter, all employees of the city when they answer the telephone are expected to state, without preliminary conversation, what office it is and who is speaking.

Twenty-five million toll calls were handled over the lines of the Bell system in the state of Michigan last year. The toll calls increased 20 per cent in that period.

MOTORDOM SEEKS REPEAL OF WORLD WAR EXCISE TAX

Organized motordom is prepared to move as a unit to secure the repeal of the automotive war excise tax at the next session of Congress, according to Burton A. Towne, president of the California State Automobile Association, which is leading motordom of the West in this campaign. The state association is co-operating with the American Automobile Association, the nation-wide motorists' body, and other organizations to secure this relief for motorists from an "unnecessary tax burden," Towne says.

"Only two classes of manufactured goods—automobiles, including motorcycles, and fire arms—remain in the original group of forty-five on which the federal excise tax was levied," declares Towne. "When the emergency war revenue act became effective in 1927, cars and trucks were taxed 3 per cent. In 1919 the rate was raised to 5 per cent. In 1926 the 5 per cent tax on passenger automobiles was reduced to 3 per cent, the rate now in effect.

"Among articles which were subject to the excise tax and which now are exempted are: Sporting goods, pianos, candy, cameras, chewing gum, portable electric fans, thermos bottles, automatic vending machines, numerous kinds of clothing, perfumes, pills, yachts and motor boats.

"Since the automobile provides essential transportation and since it plays an important part in the lives of the majority of our citizens, it should not be the subject for discriminatory taxation.

"This is particularly evident when it is realized that the automobile in the United States travels 175 times as many actual miles and seven times as many passenger miles as does the steam passenger train. Other units of transportation were the first to be relieved of emergency war taxes, and the automobile should not further be discriminated against."

TELEPHONE IS NOT CARRIER OF GERMS

The telephone mouthpiece has been completely vindicated of guilt as a germ carrier. Tried by an impartial jury of medical experts and found innocent of all charges of collusion, contamination and collaboration with disease germs, was the experience to which this useful instrument of communication was recently subjected, according to fact revealed by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, M. D., formerly commissioner of health of New York City and a leading member of the nation's medical fraternity.

To determine the matter of the possible dangers of the telephone mouthpiece, Dr. Copeland states that the department of laboratories made many tests and the workers all agreed that "it is most uncommon to find and dangerous germs attached to telephones."

"One of the hardest things for us old-fashioned folks to believe is the fact that disease is rarely carried by things," said Dr. Copeland. "It is carried by persons. The moist secretions, especially from the nose and throat, are the offending substances. They can be passed from the hands of the ailing person to the hands of the well person and from those to the lips or nose. Then the work of infection has begun.

"It is readily conceivable that the moist drops of discharge might be sprayed upon the moutpiece of a telephone. If it were immediately used by a second person, before the moisture could dry, and the lips and tongue were brought in contact with this secretion, there might be an infection.

"In practice, however, the fastidious person certainly does not touch the mouthpiece with lips or tongue. It would be in a very rare case indeed that this contact could take place when contaminated moisture was present. More than this, it is unusual to find any dangerous germs. The most careful tests show this."

MYSTERY STEET: AT NIGHT

By Wesley Strong

Night's inevitable fright, blight
Souls on their way;
Harking, when it darkens, earthling
Breathes in dismay!

Alone with the moan, gloom
Of the grave.
No feet of the street, repeat
Echoes on their way.

Groan, thousands moan, roam
Empty streets of night.
Unseen, a hissing fiend, seems
Trailing in our flight.

Death! with its breath, jests
Us in our gloom;
Draped, are the escaped, shapes
From the tomb!

White! corder with Might, light
Hands grope, lie prone!
Aghast, stepping fast—at last!
Oh, home, sweet home!

KEEP STORAGE BATTERY YOUNG

Evaporation of Water During Summer Needs Attention.

Experts who gather vital statistics on storage batteries say that the average battery's life span is only 14 months. A few wise car owners know how to lengthen battery life to 22 months. How do they do it?

In caring for your storage battery, you are in much the same position as a doctor caring for a patient's health. Too much heat will kill a battery, just as too much fever will kill a man. A battery will die of laziness if not kept at work.

Feeling a Battery's "Pulse."

Charging and discharging generates battery heat, which in turn causes evaporation of water. Therefore, keep the cells filled. In summer, when evaporation is greater, this will require weekly attention. Unscrew the cap of each cell and pour in distilled water. Distilled water is necessary because it contains no acid or impurities to start counter action. The solution should be about half an inch above the tops of the plates. Be careful not to overfill, because water on the top of the battery corrodes terminals. Dry the top of the battery and occasionally coat the terminals with vaseline.

To determine the strength of the solution, use a hydrometer gauge. The more nearly the gravity reading approaches 1,280—indicating a specific gravity of 1.28—the more nearly is the cell charged. If a cell goes dry, look for cracks in the jars. Don't run with the battery overcharged or undercharged—the meter on the dash will tell you if the battery is getting its supply of current. Overcharging ruins the battery by making it too hot. Undercharging means dim lights.

Changing Plates.

When plates need changing, it is really more economical to change the negative as well as the positive plates, even if the negative plates look "all right." Although it costs more to renew both sets of plates, a battery rebuilt with the old negative plates will cost more in the long run than would an entirely new battery, because the partly rebuilt battery lacks capacity.

Addition of new separators in the battery will often add many months to the battery's life.

Jay Walkers Punished by Paris Authorities

It costs a pedestrian 4 cents to cross a Paris street outside the traffic lanes. This is not a toll charge, but the minimum police fine, now authorized by the court of cessation in a recent decision that stripped the jay walker of what he thought were his rights.

Safety zones were resented in Paris and old-fashioned citizens twice took cases to the highest court when arrested for cutting across streets outside the dotted line.

Four cents isn't much, but the public arrest, trip to the police station, appearance in court and the expense of an attorney are the real penalties.

Various Traffic Rules Confusing to Drivers

An operator of a motor vehicle in the United States when driving any time and anywhere is probably breaking one or more traffic rules without being aware of it. It is almost impossible for the car owner to know all the traffic laws enforced throughout the country. Every state, city and town has its own pet rules of the road. During last year alone more than 2,500 new traffic bills were introduced in state legislatures, and the number which were made into laws averaged about a dozen for each state.

HANDCUFFED TO CAR WHILE ON LONG TRIP

Photograph shows Sheriff Wm. Traeger at the Hall of Justice at Los Angeles, handcuffing Jack Vance to the wheel of his car. Vance will stay that way on his 90-day trip to each governor in the United States and three Canadian provinces. On the hood of the car is a sign sponsored by the National Fire Chiefs' association, asking the people of the United States "to prevent fires and the loss of life." R. J. Palmer, millionaire clubman of Los Angeles, has wagered Vance $10,000 that he will not complete the 15,000-mile trip. Vance holds an endurance record of 127 hours and 56 minutes chained to the wheel of his machine in continual motion.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The University of California is planning one of the largest programs of research ever before attempted during any one year, to be carried out between now and May 1928. An appropriation of $85,000 has been voted by the Regents for this purpose, and an exceptionally large fund from endowments and gifts is now available.

The number of attractions offered by tourists as their reason for coming to California grows more lengthy every day. A graduate student at the University of California, sent from England as a Comonwealth Fellow, says that California has the best display of dead volcanoes of any state in the Union, without mentioning the fact that it has the only living volcano in the country, excepting Alaska. The students name is Howel Williams and he is spending two years in California and Hawaii, studying volcanoes in the making in order that he can go back to England and study the scarcely distinguishable cones in the island kingdom.

A concerted drive to lower the death rate resulting from automobile accidents by instituting a uniform traffic ordinance throughout the State is being urged by women of the State in co-operation with the California Development Association and the State Chamber of Commerce. The uniform traffic ordinance, evolved by the women of California after a careful survey of the State's traffic situation, and drawn up under the supervision of the California Automobile Club of Southern California, is expected to meet all basic requirements of traffic and do away with the multiplicity of conflicting laws encountered in motoring from one end of the State to the other.

Seven motor tow-boats, three speed boats and two barges, practically the whole fleet of the Island Transportation Company of Stockton, were destroyed by fire last week with a loss of $200,000. The boats were anchored close together in Smith's canal, a mile beyond the city limits of Stockton, and the flames swept rapidly from one end of the fleet to the other.

One of the largest mountain lions ever seen in the Glenn county section was killed by Fred Haines of Lodi while hunting on the Middle ridge in the coast range. It measured over 9 feet from tip to tip. Haines came upon the animal while looking for deer. The first shot went over the lion, but his second struck it in the neck as it sought to bound away and killed it instantly.

The dove season will be the next hunting season to attract the attention of gun pointers. The season opens on September 1, practically throughout the State. Pete Peterson, hunting and fishing authority declares that the season should be an exceptionally good one as the game is more plentiful than it has been in several years.

Efforts to have Mather Field, wartime training camp for aviators near Sacramento, included in the national aviation program as a center for military and commercial aeronautics, are being renewed by Sacramento civic leaders following inspection of the airport last week.

A new movement in the way of plans for a bridge from San Mateo county to Alameda county was made last week when Colonel Frank Elbridge Webb, who has been active in the matter for some time, printed a legal notice that on October 2 he would apply for a franchise for a bridge from Candlestick Point to Alameda.

Revision of the United States Census questionaire on agriculture to include questions more applicable to California's irrigation, land development, power problems, and special crops, such as prunes, apricots, walnuts and so forth, was assured at a conference arranged by the California Development Association between the California Economic Research Council and Dr. Oliver E. Baker, economic anaylst of the United States Department of Agriculture, it was announced at Sacramento last week.

A spectacular water regatta and carnival will be held in Stockton on October 1 and 2, according to the board of directors of the Stockton Chamber of Commerce. Speed boat and yacht owners from all cities in the San Francisco Bay region and contiguous inland waterways, will be invited to participate.

Claiming he stands 6 feet 8½ inches in his stocking feet and that his twin brother is just as tall, E. E. Dickey of 4627 Hollywood boulevard, Hollywood, last week entered the State Fair contest to determine the tllest man in California. Dickey set a new high mark in the contest, which will be settled in Sacramento the week of September 3-10. Prior to this entry the high man was Joseph Lowery of Oakland, 6 feet 8 inches .

Mrs. Freda Springer last week received the first penitentiary sentence ever meted to a woman in the San Francisco district, for violation of the federal still law, when Judge A. F. St. Sure committed her to a federal prison to serve one year and one day.

One hundred and ninety-two oil wells have been spudded in this year in the various fields of Kern county, according to the report of State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. D. Bush. Last week three new wells were begun, one of them in the Wheeler Ridge district and the others in the Kern River field.

An earthquake of pronounced intensity occurred at Eureka last week. Buildings were shaken and windows broken. Several women fainted. There were no fatalities. Communication lines were put out of operation for a considerable period. The tremblor was the most violent experienced in that section since 1906.

Some 50,000 San Francisco school children will assemble in the Civic Center to greet Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh when he visits San Francisco September 16, according to plans formulated. Board of Education officials acceded to the request of Mayor Rolph and Supervisor Jesse Colman, chairman of the committee planning the reception, in planning to release the school children from their classes in time for them to attend the public reception.

The State law prohibiting the use of automobiles lighted by means of current derived from a magneto will become effective after the stroke of midnight August 31; motorists were warned last week by the State division of motor vehicles. The statute against use of magneto-lighted cars at night was passed by the Legislature four years ago, but held in abeyance until September 1, 1927, to give car owners a chance to alter lighting equipment.

Recommendations that every California city arrange for the painting of its name in large letters on the roof of its highest building as a guide to aviators were made to Governor C. C. Young last week in a letter from Secretary Hoover. Governor Young, it was announced will place the matter before the California League of Municipalities at its annual meeting scheduled in Sacramento next month.

Lions and Kiwanis of Tulare and Kings counties will stage a joint club day during the Tulare county fair in Tulare, September 20-25, according to plans launched by Tulare Lions at last week's session. Such a club day drew several hundred Lions and Kiwanis during the fair. September 20, opening day of the fair, has been set as the date for the meeting.

Mantillas and sashes are being dug from the bottoms of trunks, beards are sprouting, players are rehearsing—all these in preparation for the Serra pilgrimage to be held in Monterey September 9, 10, and 11.

The new transcontinental airplane express service, to be inaugurated this week by the American Railway Express Company, will transport express matter between Sacramento and Chicago in twenty-two hours and between Sacramento and New York in about thirty hours.

Factory employment in California showed a decline of 3.8 per cent during July, 1927, as compared with July, 1926, though the payroll was less by only 1.9 per cent, as shown by the monthly bulletin of the division of labor statistics and law enforcement of the department of public relations. Seven hundred and thirty-six representative industries were shown to employ 135,148 workers, having an average weekly wage of $27.33, as against $26.80 a year ago.

The Morris Plan Company of San Francisco, the People Finance and Thrift Company of Los Angeles, with branches in many California cities, and other kindred firms operating in California, were last week ordered by State Corporation Commission J. M. Friedlander to discontinue temporarily the issuance of so-called thrift certificates on the grounds that loans made under this system are usurious. The order was issued following a hearing of certain loan companies.

Is there a petrified forest in Shasta County? That question was raised at Viola, Shasta County, when Frank Herbeck of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company brought to the Loomis museum several hundred pounds of petrified wood and said there is a whole tree of it at Kilare. Herbeck was six hours in getting a piece of the wood 3 feet in diameter. There are lots of petrified trees in the vicinity but they have not been uncovered by erosion, according to Herbeck. He says he saw the limbs of a petrified tree sticking out of a cliff on Pit River.

Provided enough old cars can be assembled for the big bonfire to be held shortly under the auspices of the Marysville Auto Dealers' Association, Yolo County, as a means toward getting rid of a lot of wornout and decrepit cars, a moving picture concern will send agents there to make films on the event. The fire is expected to be one of the largest of its kind ever held in California. The movie company has asked that the bonfire be held a little before sundown, in order to get a night effect. The fire will be a blow to junk dealers who now purchase and dismantle.

Kern county's tax rate may jump to $1.60 this year on the outside rate from $1.25 for every $100 valuation if tentative budgets as published by the board of supervisors are approved by the board. These figures are unofficial estimates. Last year the tax rate was $1.25. This year the supervisors plan on a 20-cent road tax and a 5-cent additional tax for maintenance. These increases in themselves would bring the tax rate up to $1.50.

The nineteenth annual conference of California health officers, in conjunction with the annual convention of the League of California Municipalities, will be held in Sacramento during the week beginning September 19. The State Board of Health announced that practically every health officer in the State is expected to attend.

Art Goebel, winner of the $25,000 first prize in the Dole flight from the mainland to Honolulu, is done with stunt flying and risking his life unnecessarily. He made this clear last week, just before sailing from Honolulu for San Francisco.

LAST STAND of the cockroach army

No use waving that white flag!

Peterman's will get him

EVERY cockroach in thousands of homes has been exterminated by Peterman's this season.

You must have a powder for roaches. Peterman's Roach Food is the right powder. It entices cockroaches from their nests.

They get just a little on their legs. Back to their nests they go—behind baseboards, under floors, where no spray could reach them.

Every cockroach they touch, their young, every egg is exterminated. Nothing is left but a little dry dust. No odor.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates cockroaches.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY (Liquid)—exterminates bedbugs (used through spout on can).

FLYOSAN—kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

PEROVICH'S ODD CASE

In 1909 the case of Vuco Perovich, convicted of a murder committed in 1905 in Alaska and sentenced to death, attracted wide attention. President Taft commuted his sentence to life imprisonment, whereupon he protested on the constitutional ground that life imprisonment was worse than death and that the president had no right to increase the severity of his punishment.

But Perovich was kept in prison until 1925, when a Federal Court in Kansas upheld his appeal and he was released on a writ of habeas corpus. Since then he has been working as a barber at Rochester, N. Y., but in June last the Supreme Court of the United States reversed the Kansas judge and declared the commutation of sentence legal. Again faced with a life term, Perovich appealed to President Coolidge, who granted him a pardon a few days ago.

Thus ends one of the strangest criminal cases on record, leaving Mr. Perovich free to continue his barbering, or, as he hopes, to go into the movies.

RENO IS BOOMING

This is not intended as a free advertisement for Reno, Nevada, but the unique character of that thriving town's attraction is such as to make it a legitimate subject of comment.

Reno has long been famous for its industry in "divorces while you wait," and you don't have to wait so very long, either. It used to take six months, but the last legislature accommodatingly shortened the period to three. Some folks who thought three months was a scandalously brief time in which to secure a divorce, tested the constitutionality of the new law, but the Supreme Court recently stamped it with its O. K. So, Reno's divorce industry has not only been saved, but it has been given a substantial boost.

While the divorce colony formerly averaged about 800, it has rapidly jumped to 1,500, and 150 lawyers are busy arranging details of the "putting asunder" process.

It will take several Gretna Greens, "marrying parsons" and the like to furnish the raw material for Reno's expanding divorce mill.

MAKE TAXABLE WEALTH

A significant thought regarding property and taxation, which applies to all agricultural states and communities, was voiced by Dr. James S. Thomas of the University of Alabama in a recent address, before a meeting of Alabama Power Company surgeons when he said:

"Hope for economic independence lies in the creation of increased volumes of taxable property to provide funds with which to educate youth, build good roads and support other state institutions and public works."

Explaining his statement, the Doctor stressed the development of industry as the key to the creation of new taxable wealth, declaring that no state or county which depends upon agriculture alone can be highly prosperous.

It can not be denied that by introducing industrial enterprises into agricultural states, markets are created at home for products of the farm, besides providing industrial property to bear a large share of the tax burden which otherwise falls upon the farmer alone.

States and communities which encourage the establishment of factories through reasonable regulatory laws, equitable methods of taxation and a spirit of co-operation will inevitably prosper to a much greater degree than those in which opposite policies are adopted. Agriculture and industry must go hand in hand in order to insure maintenance of the best American standards of living.

PLUCKY BOY REWARDED

About eighteen years ago John Livak was born on a Vermont farm of Hungarian parents who had little education and a very imperfect command of the English language. The family was poor, and as soon as he was big enough John took his share of the daily tasks on the farm, outside of school hours. But John was ambitious. His handicap of humble birth and foreign descent did not dismay him.

After finishing the course in the little district school nearby, he walked four miles and back each day to attend the high school in Rutland, often in the severest weather, with the temperature for below zero. This year he graduated, standing second in a class of 128.

But that is not all. He has won the national essay prize offered by the American Chemical Society, in competition with 6,000 other high school pupils. This gives him a full four year scholarship at Yale, with $500 a year for living expenses besides.

This is but another illustration of what a young person with ambition, energy and grit can accomplish, even under adverse circumstances, in this land of opportunity.

The example of John Livak, the Hungarian farmer boy, is a stern rebuke to those who belittle our American institutions and sow seeds of discontent, as well as to those shiftless individuals who whine because they "never had a chance."

OFFICERS FROM RANKS

Political pull is no longer an absolute prerequisite for admission to the United States Military Academy at West Point, as is shown by the increasing number of enlisted men of the regular army who are securing such appointments.

Since the World war, schools have been conducted at various military posts for the purpose of assisting the enlisted men to prepare for West Point entrance examinations, and since 1920 there have been 289 cadets so appointed. This year twenty-five enlisted men were admitted, while twenty-six others qualified, but failed to secure appointments because the law limits the number from the ranks to twenty-five in one year.

Of these twenty-five who entered the Military Academy in July, twenty-one were privates, two privates first class, one corporal and one sergeant. The appointments represented eight branches of the service. For the second consecutive year enlisted men of the Hawaiian department led all other departments in the number of cadets furnished.

That former enlisted men have made good at the Academy is illustrated by the fact that among the graduates of 1924 a former enlisted man led his class, while in the class of 1927, with 203 graduates, the first and second honor men were both former private soldiers.

In the old army, particularly prior to the Spanish-American war, few men from the ranks ever obtained commissions, and those who did were hardly considered on an equality with the military aristocracy composed of West Point graduates. Since the World war, the army has become more democratic, which is probably a good thing, both for the army and for the country.

STAMPS EIGHTY YEARS OLD

It is perhaps not generally known that United States postage stamps have been in use only eighty years, but such is the case. Many persons now living can remember when postage stamps were unknown. The first issue of United States stamps consisted of only two denominations, the 5-cent, used on half-ounce letters going 300 miles or less, and the 10-cent for letters going a distance exceeding 300 miles.

The 5-cent stamp bore the portrait of Benjamin Franklin, our first postmaster. The 10-cent stamp bore the portrait of Washington, and they were first issued in 1837, although a few postmasters had issued some stamps at their own expense for about two years previously. The very first adhesive stamps to be issued by any government were introduced in England in 1840, the example being quickly followed by other nations.

In addition to the regular issues of stamps, the United States has at various times provided special stamps commemorative of important historical events, the last of which is the Lindbergh 10-cent air mail stamp. Three memorial stamps have been issued, in memory of Lincoln, Harding and Ericsson.

The first issue of postage stamps in 1847 would seem very insignificant in volume compared with the tremendous output of the present year, which is estimated to be not less than eighteen billion, requiring 1,000 tons of paper, 575 tons of gum and 500 tons of ink. Placed end to end, this one year's supply would reach around the earth at the equator ten times.

But no one has figured out how much energy and moisture it will take to stick them where they will perform their duty.

Tex Ricard is overlooking something by not signing up Aimee and Mother Kennedy for a ten-round argument.

Campaign managers will soon begin the roll-call, to which all good party men with a roll will be expected to respond.

SALMON LAW UPHELD

The California salmon law was held constitutional by Judge Edward J. Butler of Marin county in the case in which the law was being attacked by the salmon fishermen of San Francisco bay. The law states that the season closes on August 16 in District 10, which includes the state waters within the three-mile limit from Point Santa Cruz to the south line of Mendocino county.

In this district it is illegal to have salmon in possession during the closed season. There is an exception in the law which allows the possession in any closed district of salmon imported from Oregon or Washington or from any other fish and game district where the season is open. The fishermen contended that this exception allowed them to go outside the three-mile limit, catch fish, and bring them into the closed territory.

The fishermen were represented in court by Carl Westerfeldt, former commissioner and executive officer of the Fish and Game Commissioner, but Judge Butler gave it as his opinion that the legislature evidently did not want salmon to be brought from outside the three-mile limit, even though it permitted salmon to be imported from our two sister states. This conclusion followed the argument of B. D. Marx Greene, attorney for the Division of Fish and Game, that it was just as hard on the salmon to allow them to be caught outside the boundary of District 10 as it would be to allow them to be taken in that closed district.

The closed seasons on the outside salmon trolling districts come at a time when fishermen catch too great a proportion of immature fish and thus cause a great waste.

It is the contention of the Fish and Game Division that the salmon of California are rapidly diminishing in numbers, due to inadequate protective measures, and that this victory will slightly postpone the time when the California salmon will become commercially extinct, and it is therefore a very gratifying decision, N. B. Scofield, head of the Commercial Fisheries Department, declared.

Europe today has about as many telephones per hundred people as the United States had in 1900. In other words, Europe is a quarter of a century behind this country in telephone development.

Most of the natives of Nicaragua are now reported to be "quiet and tranquil," particularly the 300 who ran afoul of the Marines.

For the year ending March 31, 1927, the Bell system paid operating taxes of $70,637,000.

Disarmament was about as popular in Geneva as it is in Chicago.

Colma News Notes

Mrs. Oaks is up and around after a recent illness.

Mrs. Fuchs, of Modesto, formerly of Colma, spent Wednesday with Mrs. W. Wardwell.

Mrs. A. Lagomarsino underwent a minor operation Thursday at St. Mary's hospital.

A dance will be given in a few weeks by the Colma Athletic Club. Watch the Record for date and place.

Bob Jensen, of Lawndale, has been transferred from the Shell Oil service station at San Jose to the station at Santa Barbara.

Messrs. U. Granucci, Angelo Olcese, Henry Bauer and L. Gregori left Wednesday morning to spend sveral days dove hunting at Williams.

The present Colombo Auditorium will be torn down shortly and a permanent structure put up. According to rumor, the new headquarters will be a structure Colma can be proud of.

The laides of the Holy Angels' church will hold a benefit whist for the church on Thursday, September 15, in the church hall. Mrs. M. Grady will be in charge and promises to provide an excellent evening for all whist fans.

The Colma Volunteer Fire Department will hold its usual monthly whist on Saturday evening, September 10, in Jefferson Hall. Turn out and back the men who stand ready day and night to back you and your household when fire attacks.

Two new two-cent memorial stamps are now on sale at the Colma postoffice The first Sesqui-Centennial stamp portrays the surrender of General Burgoyne at Saratoga in 1777. The sceond is the figure of Bennington, the pioneer commander in the Vermont battles in 1777.

The recently organized Colma Chamber of Commerce is meeting regularly every Friday evening at 8 o'clock in its headquarters next to the health office. All interested merchants who are not now members are invited to communicate with the secretary, Mr. A. Stampanoni.

The floor of the Ford sales department of M. Belli Motor Company has been repainted a pleasing gray. All the 1927 Fords have been sold and the floor will remain empty until the advent of the new Ford. It's coming is promised in from two to four weeks.

The regular monthly whist party for the benefit of St. Maximus church will be held Tuesday evening, September 6, in the Daly City Auditorium, at 8:30 o'clock. The party is under the supervision of the ladies who will have charge of the St. Maximus booth at the coming festival, which will be held in October.

The River Sand and Gravel Company has purchased a tract of 200 feet frontage on the west side of the railroad tracks from James Callan, through the local realty firm of J. T. Casey & Son. They will immediately begin work on large gravel and sand bunkers and will make a total investment of over $20,000 in bunkers and equipment.

There will be two big features at the State Theatre next Sunday, September 4, Buck Jones in "The Man Four Square," and George Sidney and Marion Nixon in "The Auctioneer."

Attracted by the glare against the sky of a burning barn at Price street and Hillside boulevard, the watchman of the Colma Volunteer Fire Department turned in an alarm at 1:50 Sunday morning which routed out the department in record time. The fire had progressed too far and the building was burned to the ground, while the firemen used their chemicals protecting nearby homes and nurseries. The damage amounted to several hundred dollars, the cost of the structure only, as it was entirely empty.

The same committee that was so active in circulating the petition to annex Colma to Daly City is now busily engaged in campaigning for a successful vote for the issue. The election will be held on Saturday, October 8, in Jefferson Hall, between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. A majority vote is needed to make the annexation. County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese is busy checking over the 105 names on the petition and determining the eligible voters in the area affected. As the proposed boundaries cut through both Colma voting precincts No. 1 and No. 2, this will necessitate a detailed count of those voters who are entitled to cast their ballots for or against the proposition. This number is expected to run under 400.

James Troglia headed a delegation from Rockaway Beach which appeared before the county board of supervisors on Wednesday, asking the plans for a new ocean highway from San Francisco to Santa Cruz be made. It is planned to run this road over the site of the old Ocean Shore Railway as far as Tiburon, just south of Half Moon Bay. After some discussion the board voted to repass ordinances creating a highway district over the route in this county. This ordinance was passed before in a slightly different form, which was faulty. On the same day San Francisco's board acted similarly. All that remains now for the formation of the district is for the Santa Cruz county board to join in this move.

You should see Harrison Ford and Bessie Love in "Rubber Tires," at the State Theatre this Saturday, September 3. The Kiddie Revue will be one of the features of the performance.

New York department store advertises the Gene Tunney shirt. Has anyone exploited the Lindbergh sandwich?

Mayor Thompson of Chicago has been so busy working for flood relief that he hasn't had time to finish off King George.

NEW FRONTIERS FOR PIONEERS

The complaint is heard that modern industrial organization and the disappearance of the frontiers is destroying opportunities for individual independence. Big Business grows bigger. The good free land is gone. The Klondikes have been discovered and skimmed of their cream. The telephone, telegraph, automobile, radio, airplane—all these have been invented. And so we have a melancholy picture of a generation of young Alexanders sighing because there are no more worlds to conquer.

But is it true that opportunity is gone and the pioneer is being crowded to the wall? Each age has its own peculiar needs and sets up its own frontiers for pioneers to pierce. The more humanity gets the more it needs, and now as in the past those who supply those needs will lack no recognition. The fortunes we consider stupendous are puny beside those that will be created in time to come by genius and industry. There is no lack of opportunity, but instead, so many chances that we cannot see the forest because the trees are in the way.—San Francisco Chronicle.

PREVENTION OF ACCIDENTS

If universally adopted, compulsory automobile liability insurance would cost the American public in the neighborhood of a billion dollars a year, according to a writer who objects to compulsory insurance, who asks: And wherein would conditions be improved?

In accidents where a pedestrian is wholly or partially at fault, he could recover no damages. Statistics show that the pedestrian is wholly at fault in about one-third of the accidents.

When such insurance is furnished by the state, it applies only to accidents on state highways. Such a policy would give far from complete coverage.

If we had uniform and universal insurance, farmers in isolated regions where accidents are rare, would pay out millions of dollars in insurance premiums because of accidents in the highly congested districts. This would hardly seem fair. About 60 per cent of motorists in cities already carry liability insurance.

Court procedure is a long and tedious affair now. Witth compulsory automobile insurance, as with other insurance, claims would not be against the motorist but against the insurance company. It is inevitable that claims would be larger both in number and size, and size of judgments would be very likely to increase.

It would seem that stringent licensing of drivers, safely constructed highways, and enforcement of uniform traffic regulations would do more to prevent accidents than would compulsory liability insurance.

Toy pistols are not permitted to be shipped to British India. Well, they wouldn't be of much use in quelling a mutiny.

Gerber, California, recently staged a "saxophone filed day" without a single murder, which shows the tolerance of folks in the Golden state.

The long looked for saturation point appears to have been discovered in New York City.

WRITTEN IN AN ALBUM

By Wesley Strong

From a root sometimes a flower is bloomed.
The homely sore is the Scar of Love
When Time heals not mem'ry or the wound—
Fixed. A stigma our God can't e'er remove.
Our Mind is stronger than any Power
Death can evoke; nor the links of any chain
That bind and hold the Earth.
Though we leave this world, our Mind an iron yoke,
Ungirded not e'en in Death or Process of Rebirth!
Though reincarnation, there is, I think, a
Memory of Previous Life—
Forever our Minds doth go, though our body immaterial,
Stay dumb on earth and insensible, lay untouched within a tomb—
When washed our image from Minds of Friends
And trivial their Love to us.
Yet shall brute in Oblivion, my Sweet Love for you!

TREES NOT DIMINISHING FLOOD STORAGE SPACE

"The tree growth on the several millions of acres between or inside the levees of the Mississippi could have only a negligible effect upon the level of a flood, and only a nominal influence upon the movement of the waters toward the Gulf." This declaration by Associate Forester E. A. Sherman of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, is made as a response to one of the most unique among the many suggestions offered with a view to controlling floods of the great river.

The author of this suggestion estimates that 85 per cent of the cubic space between the levees from Cairo to Baton Rouge is occupied by "giant cottonwood forest and other kinds of tree growth of all sizes," and urges that the area be completely stripped of the trees to make more room for the water.

"It is unquestionably true that this land area does support lowland hardwood forests of great extent and value. Possibly 85 per cent of the surface area is given to growing trees. But," said Forester Sherman, "the computation of cubic feet occoccupied by the tree growth must be based on the space actually occupied by the trees, rather than by the entire land surface on which the trees grow, and when so computed the space between the levees does not appear to be nearly so choked or usurped by the trees. Actual investigations on representative lands in the Mississippi valley have shown, for example, that the cottonwood produces a maximum of 6,900 cubic feet of wood per acre at fifty years of age, with an average height of 136 feet. This means about 50 cubic feet of wood volume for each acre-foot (43,560 cubic feet) of surface. In other words, though 85 per cent of this land surface may be taken up by tree growth, that tree growth is occupying not 85 per cent but one-ninth of one per cent of the cubical space, and its effect toward raising the flood level or retarding the movement of the waters is seen to be wholly insignificant.

"Certainly," the forester points out, "any trifling disadvantage thus caused is overwhelmingly counterbalanced by the benefits derived from making this land, which is useless for any other continued production, grow trees."

NEW OIL ELECTRIC CAR

Recent improvements in transportation methods are not confined to the air, although aerial developments have attracted a large share of the public's attention lately.

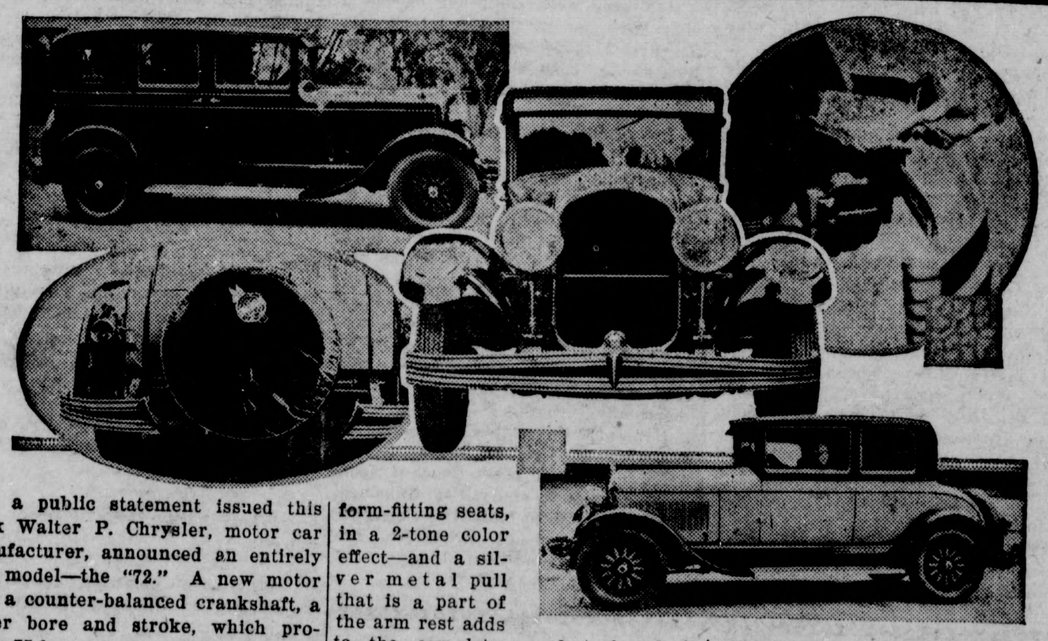
The successful operation of a new oil electric car by the Canadian National Railways appears to mark an important advance in rail transportation, according to the American trade commissioner at Toronto.

This car recently ran from Montreal to Toronto in five hours and thirty minutes, or two hours and twenty minutes less than the schedule time of the fast International Limited.

The car is 74 feet long, with compartments for engine, baggage and thirty-seven passengers, and weighs sixty-three tons. It burns crude oil, which operates the engine, which in turn runs the generator, supplying electrical energy for the operation of the car.

Whether cars of this or a similar type will come into general use can not be foretold, but the development along these lines indicates that the railroads are alive to the problems they must face in competition with busses and airplanes, and are bringing to their aid the most advanced products of engineering skill.

CHRYSLER "72" EMBODIES NEW FEATURES



In a public statement issued this week Walter P. Chrysler, motor car manufacturer, announced an entirely new model—the "72." A new motor with a counter-balanced crankshaft, a larger bore and stroke, which produces 75 horsepower and is capable of maintaining a speed of 72 miles or more per hour is the outstanding feature. Ten inches have been added to the frame, which gives the new car an appearance that was not found in the old models. Great care has been shown in the selection of interior decorations and fittings. Beautiful mohair covers the deeply upholstered form-fitting seats, in a 2-tone color effect—and a silver metal pull that is a part of the arm rest adds to the complete comfort found in the new cars. The picture in the upper left corner is that of the new Crown sedan—in the lower right corner is the new four-pasenger coupe, which is one of the most striking models of the "72" line. (Center) is a head-on view of the new Chrysler radiator and the new full drum headlights mounted on nickled posts. The picture in the upper right corner shows the housing which covers the blocks of live rubber in which all the spring shackles are set. This feature greatly improves the riding qualities of the car. The lower left corner shows a picture of the new factory-built bumper, which has been designed not only to protect the rear end of the car, but to improve its appearance by following the lines of the spare tire.

—We are now displaying in our show rooms the new "52," "62" and "72" Chrysler. You are invited to come in and look them over. You'll be welcome, whether you buy or not.
—We also have a few excellent buys in high-grade 1927 second-hand Chryslers.

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

As We Grow Older

Proper Kidney Function Is More Than Ever Important.

AS we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions.

The kidneys are the blood filters. If their action becomes sluggish they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes. This tends to make one tired and achy, with often a nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common symptom of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning excretions.

Shakespeare's Writing Tells of Fatal Worry

None of Shakespeare's works in the poet's own handwriting are now in existence, but there are in existence books which belonged to Shakespeare and in which he wrote. These two conclusions have been reached by Dr. Samuel A. Tannenbaum, Shakespearean authority. Doctor Tannenbaum has made a close scrutiny of the six indubitable specimens of Shakespeare's handwriting; the three signatures in the will in Somerset house and on the three documents, one on each at Guildhall, British museum, and public record office. He demonstrates that the poet's handwriting shows characteristics that belong to sufferers from angina pectoris, and that the poet died of this disease, brought on, probably, by domestic worries, his younger daughter having married a man unworthy of her.

Passport Photos Must Resemble Applicants

Proof of the vanity of some women is often furnished in the New York customs house by passport applicants, according to Frederick Tisdale in an article in Liberty. The author quotes an official of the New York passport office who says, "We are often amused by some of the photographs submitted by older applicants. A woman of fifty will bring in a photograph copied from a picture made when she was in high school. We explain tactfully that the photo is necessary for identifying the passport holder, and we are forced to point out that the applicant resembles the earlier picture only vaguely after all these years. Sometimes they regard our attitude as a personal offense."

Women dragging plows through the first furrows in the fields to prevent evil spirits blighting the crops may be seen within short distances of Moscow.

Idolatrous worship and superstitious practices continue almost within the shadow of the Moscow universities, according to a report by the ethnographic department of the commissariat of education.

The god o hens is still placated with special offerings in villages close to Moscow, wizards are asked to cure illnesses by applying toads to the skin of the sufferer, quacks and voodoo men conduct a thriving trade, and many other dark and dismal magics persist, in spite of the active educational work of the government.

Truth About the Petrel

For centuries mariners believed that the petrel never approached land, and that it laid its egg at sea and carried it about under one wing until it hatched. Not long ago, however, a party of explorers found a small petrel laying its egg under the soft soil of an isle of the Cape Verde archipelago, instead of carrying it around under its wing. The Cape Verde isle of Cima, which is uninhabited, is covered with the tiny bones of millions of petrels, which in ages past have come there to die.

A Changeable Animal

An animal which can change into another animal and then back to its original form is the startling discovery announced by Dr. Martha Bunting of the zoological department of the University of Pennsylvania.

The "animal" is one-celled, resembling a minute drop of jelly, and belongs to the amoeba family. It can transform itself into a complicated flagellate, Doctor Bunting declares, and then effect a retransformation back to its amoeba state.

Girl Inventor Honored

In recognition of her ability as an inventor, the Russian government has engaged Miss L. Y. Palmen, a Russian girl, as engineer-constructor. She is one of the few women in the world to win distinction in her field. She recently perfected an airplane engine which develops 20 horse power and is specially adapted to the requirements of the All-Russian conference of aerial and chemical defense.

STORY FROM THE START

Dr. Ronald McAlister, psychologist, undertakes to solve the mystery of the murder of a recluse, Henry Morgan. The dead man's papers reveal that he had been in New Zealand, where McAlister had lived in his youth. Will Harvey testifies to seeing a woman in a green cloak at the Morgan home the night of the murder. Doctor McAlister is asked to see a young woman patient in a hospital. In her delirium she mutters in a strange language which only McAlister understands. He suspects she may know something of the murder. A carefully hidden map is discovered by McAlister and Assistant District Attorney Ashton in Morgan's home. While they are searching a young woman enters the house in the darkness and escapes, leaving behind a green cloak. The name of Jane Perkins, a housemaid, is brought into the case and McAlister believes he has a clue. In response to an advertisement of the finding of a green cloak, a young woman, giving her name as Jane Perkins, housemaid at The Meredith, claims it. McAlister takes two laboratory instruments to The Meredith for an undisclosed purpose.

And yet his manner when he took the chair that Wilkins placed for him, and glanced over the menu card suddenly became leisurely and deliberate. He had a little chat with Wilkins, taking the advice of that gastronomic expert as seriously as if a good dinner were the only subject that he felt the slightest interest in just then.

The waiter got our order at last and went away with it to the kitchen, and Wilkins himself, with a grave inclination of the head, started to move away, but the doctor called him back.

"I wonder, Wilkins," he said, "whether you can find out for me if there is a chambermaid named Jane Perkins employed in the hotel."

The man shot a quick look of surprise into the doctor's face, a look quite at variance with his ordinary stiff immobility.

"Yes, sir, there is such a young woman working here," he said. "It happens that I am acquainted with her personally."

"Ah," said the doctor in a tone of satisfaction, "that simplifies matters. I might have known that you would be able to help me. Wilkins, it happens that I very much wish to have a little conversation with that young woman."

Wilkins inclined his head gravely, without a word.

"You'll arrange it for me, won't you?" said the doctor. "I'd like to have her sent to my room immediately after dinner."

There was a momentary silence after that. Both of us looked up in some surprise that the man did not answer. His face was unusually grave.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said with a little hesitation; "I hope you'll forgive the liberty, but I have, as I was saying, something of a personal interest in that young woman. I hope she's not in any difficulty, sir. I hope that she has not been doing anything that she shouldn't have done."

"I'm inclined to think not," said the doctor, "but unless I am mistaken, she's in a difficulty."

Wilkins said nothing, but his silence was expectant. He was too well trained to ask any questions, but it was very evident that he wanted to know more.

"I think I may venture to be frank with you, Wilkins," the doctor resumed. "Of course what I say is between ourselves, and I want your promise to say nothing of it to the young woman in question."

"Yes, sir; certainly, sir."

"In the investigation of the Oak Ridge murder the other night a certain green cloak was found, which in the state attorney's office, is believed to have been worn by an unknown woman who committed that crime. That cloak was advertised as found, in the afternoon papers, and was almost immediately claimed and identified beyond a doubt by this Jane Perkins, who gave The Meredith as her address—"

"She didn't do it, sir," Wilkins interrupted quickly. "I'm sure she can't be guilty of the crime of murder. She's a very quiet girl, sir—a good girl."

"I have made a little investigation of that mystery on my own account," said the doctor, "and I'm inclined to think you're right. I should, however, be glad to have some better founded reason for that opinion. There are certain circumstances which point at her directly enough to bring her under serious suspicion and to make her a good deal of trouble. If Mr. Phelps and I can convince ourselves, in advance, of her innocence, we will gladly do all that is within our power, both Mr. Ashton and otherwise, to shield her."

"That's very good of you, sir," said Wilkins. "I'll see that she's sent up to your room the moment you have finished dinner."

There was another little silence; still Wilkins kept his place beside our table. Presently, after a little apologetic cough, he spoke again.

"It strikes me, sir, that it might, perhaps, be as well if the young woman were not to know that she was to be questioned. If she is innocent, it would only fluster her, and if she is guilty, it would give her time to prepare herself. If you wish, I will arrange to have her sent to your apartments, instead of the regular chambermaid who works upon that floor, to prepare your bedrooms for the night. In that way she'll suspect nothing."

The doctor glanced at him shrewdly. "That was a very able suggestion, Wilkins. Thank you for making it."

"Not at all, sir," said Wilkins.

"For the present," the doctor concluded, "you will remember that you are to say nothing of this conversation to anyone, either to the other people in the hotel, or to—Mr. Ashton."

The Man Shot a Quick Look of Surprise Into the Doctor's Face.

"Certainly not, sir."

The arrival of some other people in the dining room called him away just then, and we did not see him again until we were half through our meal. Then, looking up, we found him standing, silently, in his old place.

"The matter is arranged, sir," he said to the doctor. "The young person is at her own dinner just now, but she'll go up to attend to your rooms in about half an hour."

"Very good," said the doctor. "We can have our instruments ready by that time."

At the word "instruments" the man started, and, looking up, I found him regarding the doctor with a queer, half-frightened expression.

"Speaking of instruments, sir," he said, stammering a little, "there isn't going to be any mesmerism, or—"

The doctor interrupted him with a full-voiced laugh. "No hocus-pocus whatever, Wilkins; no black art, no clairvoyance, or anything of that sort. The instruments I speak of simply serve the purpose of a stop-watch, and the test is a perfectly simple, straightforward one."

Then, seeing that the man was still not entirely convinced, he added, "You can be present yourself, if you care to be."

"That's very good of you, sir," said the man. "On the young woman's account I will be glad to come, if you can wait until I can leave the dining room. That will be about eight-thirty, sir. I'd be sorry to keep you waiting, but she might be alarmed at any sort of test, and she has a good deal of confidence in me, sir."

"Very good," said the doctor, "only don't come up to the room with her. Follow along later, on some errand or other, and we'll call you in. Perhaps we'll make a little demonstration on you in advance, just to give her confidence."

A look of decorous amusement appeared on Wilkins' face.

"That will be very interesting, I'm sure, sir," he said. As he bowed himself away I could see that he was still smiling.

"It's curious," I observed to the doctor. "We've seen that man daily since we came here to The Meredith to live, but I got an absolutely new impression of him this evening. It never occurred to me before that when he laid aside his professional manner he might be a thoroughly human, kindly old chap, with as many affections and concerns as any of us, and with, perhaps, about the same opinion of our reality as we have always had of his."

"We'd better get on," said the doctor, suiting the action to the word. "We haven't any time to waste."

As we walked over toward the elevator Wilkins preceded us and rang the bell for us, just as he always did. I had it my tongue's end to make some reference to our engagement with him for a little later in the evening, not that it was necessary, but simply because it was more natural to say, "In half an hour, then," or something of that sort, than merely to nod and answer his good night. I think he must have perceived that intention, certainly he checked it by looking, just then, a little more wooden and professional than ever. I understood when I glanced over his shoulder and saw that Ashton had just come in. He was not looking our way. Whether he had made a point of not looking, I do not know; but I was glad that I had not blurted out, in his hearing, any reference to the unusual and highly unprofessional sort of engagement that the doctor and I had with Wilkins.

"A rather remarkable man," said I, as we stepped into the elevator.

The doctor nodded.

A few minutes later, in the doctor's spacious sitting room where we had set up our instruments and now sat waiting for the arrival of the subject we meant to test by them, we heard a rap at the door.

"No timidity about that," observed the doctor in a whisper; "and no effrontery, either. A plain, commonsense, professional knock. Let her in, will you, Phelps?"

It was with a mounting excitement that I crossed the room and laid my hand on the knob, for there, on the other side of this door, was one of the elements of our mystery. What would she prove to be? Another innocent person, tangled by pure chance in the spider's web of circumstance which surrounded our mystery; or would she turn out to be, herself, one of the spinners of the web?

When I opened the door I got, instantaneously, a very good view of the girl, for the sitting-room was brightly lighted and the little entrance hallway where she stood comparatively dark. And that first look of mine brought a disappointment, there was no doubt of that. I had not known exactly what I had expected Jane Perkins to be like, but something different from this, certainly. The whole look of her as she stood there, an appearance so pervasive that it baffled analysis, was of stolid stupidity.

Her eyes were dull, her cheeks a very dark red, so that as I looked at her first I suspected a perfectly reckless use of cosmetic. Of course the standard I compared her by was the wild girl in the hospital, for, upon the doctor's theory of Harvey's testimony, that wild girl's profile had reminded him forcibly of this English housemaid. There was a crude sort of resemblance between the two faces—the heavy brows and lashes, the black hair and general contour of the features. Indeed, the thing that occurred to me as I stood there was the ridiculous futility of written descriptions of faces, when the same description would include two people whose general air and appearance were so diametrically different.

I found it impossible to describe the wildness and curious unearthly distinction of that other face; I found it as difficult to analyze the tameness, the commonplace banality of this one. And yet, seen in silhouette, they might look a good deal alike.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Birds to Be Classed as Master Builders

Birds are the most perfect builders, and—strange as it may sound—there is scarcely a trade that you will not find represented among these feathered craftsmen.

Many of the nests of American birds are marvels of ingenuity, but their greatest efforts pale beside the wonders of the tropics. Weavers, carpenters, tailors, plasterers, tunnelers—these are but a few of the many trades that we find practiced when the nesting season arrives.

The sand-martin and the kingfisher, both belong to the guild of tunnelers, and are content with a burrowed hole. Ducks, gulls, water hens, and corncrakes are all primitive builders, with no ideas beyond a rough and scanty collection of materials loosely thrown together on the ground.

The house swallow is a plasterer, employing as his building materials nothing more than mud, but out of this he contrives to erect a nest that is wonderfully strong, and put together with neatness and care.

The singing thrush uses more varied materials, a mixture of clay, cow manure, and moss, but well and truly laid, and forming a splendid home for the young birds.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

THE CRICKETS' BALL

Nancy had been playing with her paper dolls almost all day. Nick, of course, was not much interested in paper dolls, but one thing he did like about Nancy's paper doll family was that they were always requiring new clothes.

Playing With Her Paper Dolls.

And Nick had the most complete paint box!

He thoroughly enjoyed painting beautiful hats and gowns to match.

Nancy was always so pleased, because he made them such very bright and charming clothes.

When Daddy came home he found all the paper dolls dressed up for the evening and looking very fine.

"They're to hear the story, too," said Nancy.

"Good," said Daddy, and Nick added:

"Please tell us about the crickets. We heard them making such a noise this evening.

"I'm quite certain they must have been having a party."

"Why, of course," said Daddy. "Tonight is the night of their annual Harvest Ball.

"They have been getting ready for this for days and days. You must have heard the guests arriving.

"They have asked ever so many for tonight. In fact, I have heard that the crickets said it was to be the largest ball ever held in the cricket world.

"All of the cricket band are out for the occasion, and they have been practicing for days, for they say they will play only the very latest dance music.

"I fancy it will be a wonderful ball, and no doubt it will keep you two children awake, for, with all the music, the singing, the laughing and chatting, it will be hard for you to get to sleep.

"Perhaps it may even keep the paper dollies awake."

Nancy smiled at this, for it pleased her to have Daddy speak of her paper dolls, especially as they were listening to the story too.

The Finest of Suppers.

"The crickets," continued Daddy, have invited the frogs, the toads, the lizards, and a number of moths to their ball, and they have all been trying to make themselves appear their very best for tonight.

"I have heard that the crickets have prepared the finest of suppers to be served to their guests after the dance is over."

"What have they planned to have?" asked Nancy.

"They are going to have moss soup, water cress cutlets, strawberry ice, and spring water to drink.

"Of course there may not be any strawberries in the strawberry ice, but at least it will have the color of strawberries."

At this one of the paper dolls fell over on its face, so Daddy said:

"I certainly think it must be bedtime."

SLOGAN'S VALUE MADE POSSIBLE BY NEWSPAPERS

One would think the United States was slogan mad, the way they appear in the thousands of daily and weekly newspapers, but on the other hand slogans have been made such valuable assets that they are listed in many cases way up in the millions of dollars.

The manufacturer realizes the value of a slogan, and any man in business can not or should not underestimate that value. There are three contributing factors which combine to make a slogan worth while and nationally known. First, the reliability of the firm; second, the high quality of its product, and third, the newspapers.

For instance, what valuation do you suppose the Victor Talking Machine Co. places on its slogan, "His Master's Voice," accompanied by the little Fox terrior dog, looking into the horn of an old style talking machine. It would be guessing for anyone to say positively, but a conservative estimate would be far better than a million dollars. What made that slogan so valuable and universally well known? There is only one answer, and that is the newspapers of the United States.

Think of the value of other slogans, such as, "When better automobiles are built, Buick will build them;" "Next to me I like B. V. D.'s;" "Say it with flowers;" "It's time to re-tire," and everyone knows that means Fiske tires. Camel Cigarettes slogan is, "I'd walk a mile for a Camel," and every smoker knows the slogan just as well as they know the name Camel. The Union and Associated Oil companies made "Ethyl" famous overnight and today everyone knows it to be a high-powered gasoline.

Henry Ford made his car known by adopting the slogan, "The Universal Car," and then telling the world about it through the columns of the newspaper. Maxwell Coffee has a slogan, "Good to the Last Drop," and what do you suppose that slogan, or any other, would amount to if it were not for the newspapers. It wouldn't be worth the paper it is written on.

The Paramount Famous Lasky corporation, that famous movie outfit in Los Angeles, has a slogan that reads, "If it is a Paramount Picture it is the best picture in town," and everybody knows it to be the truth.

When national advertisers see fit to adopt a slogan typical of their business or product, why shouldn't it be just as valuable and wise procedure for the smaller merchant in his local community? He can make a slogan just as valuable.

For instance, in Fresno there is a jeweler whose slogan reads, "You are safe at Nielsen's," and he is known all over Fresno county as a jeweler whom you can depend upon.

Even hotels use slogans to a very good advantage, and a good example is the slogan of the Manx Hotel in San Francisco, "Meet me at the Manx," and it is known to the traveling public all over the Pacific Coast as a popular meeting place.

Slogans should be made to tell a real story and be tied up in a serious way with the product or firm.

A good slogan should be adopted the same as any other store policy is adopted, only after long and serious consideration. Once it has been adopted it should be put over with all the force and energy possible. Through the columns of the newspapers is the only sure, efficient and economical way this can be done, and once a reliable firm has put over a worthy slogan and backs it up, success will come much easier.

MONTEREY TO HOLD SERRA PILGRIMAGE

Honoring the life and works of Father Junipero Serra, founder of the California missions, citizens of Monterey are planning a three day pilgrimage to various shrines along the Monterey peninsula, to commence Friday evening, September 9, with a pageant-drama in which a cast of 200 will participate.

The pageant is the work of Monsignor R. M. Mestrest and Perry Newberry, and will be repeated Saturday evening, both performances being in the Forest Theatre, Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Sunday morning visitors will make a "chain of missions pilgrimage," starting at the Serra Monument, Monterey peninsula, and ending at Mission San Carlos del Rio Carmelo with roll call of missions.

An interesting feature will be the blessing of the fishing fleet Sunday evening in an illuminated water pageant at Monterey.

Penalty of Perfection

If you are a flawless editor, it goes without saying; they take you for granted. As editor of the Conning Tower we read every piece of copy before it is printed, mark it for type, read proof, and make-up. The stuff always is in the composing room on time; it always has been. But here is Henry Ford, who got on the front pages a few days ago because of his paper's stand; here he is on all the front pages again, just because he says he was wrong. It is all a little discouraging.—F. P. A., in the New York World.

Politicians, however, sow the wind and expect to reap votes.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS:

WHEREAS, HERETOFORE, and on the first day of June, 1925, E. G. LEHFELDT and BELLE BLEND LEHFELDT, his wife, parties of the first part, did execute and deliver to TITLE INSURANCE AND GUARANTY COMPANY, a corporation, as trustee, and DAVID BROWN as beneficiary, a certain deed of trust which said deed of trust was thereafter, and on the 5th day of June, 1925, recorded in the office of the County Recorder of the County of San Mateo, in Volume 174 of Official Records, at page 348 thereof, records of San Mateo County, California, and

WHEREAS, as part of and of even date with the execution of said deed of trust, said E. G. LEHFELDT and BELLE BLEND LEHFELDT, his wife, did execute and deliver to said DAVID BROWN a promissory note in the sum of FIVE HUNDRED ($500.00) DOLLARS, payable Two years after date with interest thereon at rate of Seven (7) per cent per annum, interest payable quarterly in advance, none of which has been paid, and

WHEREAS, heretofore, and on the 16th day of August, 1926, said deed of trust and the note secured thereby, was duly assigned, transferred and conveyed by said DAVID BROWN to the undersigned, H. H. SMITH, who has been ever since and now is the owner and holder thereof and the beneficiary therein, and

WHEREAS, said H. H. SMITH did on the 26th day of November, 1926, record in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, a notice of the breach of the provisions of said note and said deed of trust and of the election of said H. H. SMITH to sell or cause to be sold the real property described and set forth in said deed of trust and hereinafter described, to satisfy the obligations evidenced by said promissory note and/or said deed of trust, and secured by said deed of trust

WHEREAS, said H. H. SMITH, did, on the 26th day of November, 1926, record in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Volume 272 of Official Records, at page 282 thereof, San Mateo County Records, a substitution of trustee under said deed of trust, appointing CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE INSURANCE COMPANY, a corporation, as trustee in the place and in stead of and as successor to the said TITLE INSURANCE AND GUARANTY COMPANY in said deed of trust hereinabove referred to, thereby conveying unto the said new trustee all the powers and duties of its said predecessor;

WHEREAS, subsequent to the substitution of trustee as aforesaid, the CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE INSURANCE COMPANY changed its name to CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, and ever since has been and now is so entitled, and

WHEREAS, said H. H. SMITH did heretofore advise in writing the undersigned CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, as trustee under said deed of trust, that at the time of and prior to the recordation of said notice of breach, a default had been made and was existing in the payment of the principal and interest of said promissory note aforesaid, and that he had, on the 26th day of November, 1926, recorded the aforesaid notice of said breach and also of his election to cause the property described in said notice to be sold, and did demand that the undersigned, as such trustee under the power and authority conferred upon it by said deed of trust, to sell the property described in said deed of trust, and hereinafter described, to satisfy the indebtedness evidenced by said promissory note and secured by said deed of trust.

NOW, THEREFORE, said CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, in accordance with the terms and under the authority of said deed of trust, after due recordation of the aforesaid notice and upon the demand of the said H. H. SMITH duly made as aforesaid, does hereby give notice that on Thursday, the 29th day of September, 1927, at the hour of 10:00 a. m. of said day, at the main entrance of the County Court House in the County of San Mateo, State of California, it will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, all that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of San Mateo, State of California, described as follows, to-wit:

LOT No. 28 in Block numbered 19 as shown on that certain Map entitled, "Map No. 1 Vista Grande San Mateo County, California," filed in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, November 5, 1906, in Book C of Original Maps, at page 35, and copied into Book 4 of Maps, at page 41.

TERMS OF SALE

The above described parcel of land will be sold for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, ten per cent (10%) payable to the undersigned at the fall of the hammer, balance upon delivery of deed and if not so paid, then the said ten per cent (10%) to be forfeited and sale to be void instruments of conveyance and revenue stamps at purchaser's expense; taxes for the fiscal year 1927-1928 to be borne by the purchaser.

The day was spent in swimming, rowing and baseball, along with some mechanical adjustments to Fords. Delicious refreshments were provided by the girls of the class of 1926. The party returned about 6 p. m., after a wonderful day together. A meeting will be held next week to lay plans for a dance in the near future.

JEFFERSON HIGH SCHOOL

On September 23, from 7 to 9 p. m., a parents' night will be held at Jefferson Union high school. The object is to have every parent represented in the school, and every other mature person who is interested. A regular day program will be gone through by the teachers, and parents will take the place of students. The teachers will explain to the parents all of the subjects children are studying, and the purpose of each subject. This will give an opportunity for parents and teachers to become acquainted, and will make it possible for the school to render much better service to students and the community as a whole.

Prrincipal James Ferguson of the high school is making this announcement at such at early date so every parent in the Jefferson Uinon high school district may plan to be present.

Contractors are being asked to bid on two advertised proposals for a new high school athletic field. They are: Building of athletic grounds on the west end of the property; and enclosing the entire ground with a substantial fence of wire netting.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

By H. H.

VOLUME I FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1927 NUMBER 6

Published in the interests of the people of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Fare, Fair Lady!

Lady: "Dear me, I have left my money at home. You'll have to trust me; I'm one of the directors' wives."

Conductor: "Lady, I couldn't do that, even if you was the director's only wife."

Easy Money

Photograph your bank-roll, and then have it enlarged.

Remodel your old home. Make it not only more salable but more livable.

Meeting the public day by day,
Hearing the things they have to say,
Humoring, catering to every whim;
The Home - Town Merchant, don't you envy him?

It is said that when our eyes are shut, our hearing is more acute. That must be the reason so many people close their eyes in church.

We're going to stage a story-telling contest between a sewing circle and a Pullman smoking car group.

We're backing the ladies to win, and after it's over we won't have to dig up any jokes for a whole year.

Your home is no better than it looks. Money spent for repairs on a home is money saved.

Many a boss at the office washes the dishes at home.

"Charge that to Mother," said a small boy in our place the other day. "You know her; she's Dad's wife."

City Man: "Is it dry out here, Si?"

Si: "Yep, so gol darned dry you haf to pin th' postage stamps on a letter to keep 'em from fallin' off."

When you think of building, think of H. H.

We know a fellow who invested in oil stock. We know another who put his savings in a Mexican mine. And we know another fellow right here in Daly City who invested in a home. Which of the three used the best judgment? That's what we think, too.
